

Personal Information Protection Agreement

[Information Provision and Sharing] When creating an account on this website, you may provide data including your name, email and/or cell phone number, and password. You do not have to post or upload real personal data, but this may limit your ability to expand your social life and interact with your social circle through our services.

After you share the relevant address profile information on our website, other users may view or download the information as long as it is not contrary to the purpose of this website.

[Confidentiality Obligation] The website has the obligation to protect the user's registered information and shall not provide the user's information to any third party without permission, except in accordance with the requirements of the relevant administrative and judicial bodies of each country.

[Data Rights Attribution] For the data you generate in the process of using the service, the website respects and protects the data rights of you and other related subjects in accordance with the law. Under this premise, the website will not intentionally collect or record the data generated by you in the process of using the service, and the relevant rights belong to the users themselves.

[Authorized Use] Within the scope of the law, the website can promote the geological data information uploaded by users in the form of key recommendations and rankings on the homepage. It includes the right to copy, modify (such as fine-tuning for mobile visual experience), adapt (such as adding overall platform activity design elements) and translate (such as translation to meet the browsing needs of overseas users) all kinds of relevant geological information (including text, pictures, etc.) to a certain extent and to sublicense third parties to use it for the above-mentioned purposes and methods.

[Personal Information Protection] The website will strictly comply with the requirements of the laws related to network security and data protection. If the geological data information uploaded by the user involves the user's personal information, the principle of legality, legitimacy and necessity shall be followed, and the provisions of the relevant laws and the agreement with the user shall not be violated, and the use of the user's information without the user's explicit consent or beyond the scope of the user's authorization or the illegal provision of the user's personal information to others is prohibited.

[Personal Information Security] You can choose the necessary technical measures to safeguard data security by yourself, and in the event that information security risks occur or may occur, you should immediately take remedial measures, promptly inform the website and report to the relevant competent authorities in accordance with the regulations.